Twas the Night of the Stuffed Animal Sleepover at Joseph T. Simpson Public Library

February 8-9, 2019

Sponsored by the Upper Allen Woman’s Club GFWC
Twas the night of the Stuffed Animal Sleepover, the kids had gone home, as they thought the fun was all over.
At first the animals thought it was quite scary to be by themselves with no kids in the library…
They all sat together on the colorful rug, to sing songs, read a story, and comfort with hugs.
Then the friends they just made all ran to the door, to see what was out there and what to explore!
The friends worked together to open the door.

There was a whole new world out on the children’s floor!
They opened the door, and what did they see? Puzzles, Play Aways, Blocks,... There’s so much for you and me!
“Let’s go for a ride,” they exclaimed with delight.

We’ll ride the cart with our friends, and we won’t fight.
They climbed on the cart and pushed the button just right. The doors opened wide. Simba pushed with all his might.
The animals got off at floor number one.....
What is up here?
Will we see something that’s fun?
They found the book drop. Oh, please do not fall in.... We’ve no way to get you. Only books should go in!
Pooh raced to the window, “Come on, let us go. There are tracks outside. Do you know where they go? If we wait for awhile, we may see the train...or maybe today, it may just be the rain.”
Simba said, “I need a rest. On the bench I will sit, ‘Til the elevator comes; So the button, please hit.”
The elevator came, and on they all climbed.

“We are headed to two,” the animals all chimed.
“Oh, my, it’s Miss Sue’s office. She is not here.”

“We can sit on this bench. There is nothing to fear.”
Here are comfy chairs and sofas on which we can sit, or maybe we should rest and sleep for a bit.
“It is morning, my friends.

There is much more to see…”

“Let’s go back down these steps.

Please come along with me.”
“There are more steps to go....”

“Be careful,” I say.

“One step at a time... We are all on our way.”
“Wow! There is a water fountain to quench our thirst.”

Lady says politely, “I’ll wait. You can go first.”
“The computers will help us find books of all kinds."

“On these we can play games to strengthen our minds.”
“We found books about families and all different kinds. There are books about us. I hope you don’t mind.”
“Let’s first check out books, then we will look to see... What else can we do? It’s on the big TV!”
“There’s Rhyme Time, and Toddler Time, and Story Time, too! There are a lot of fun things for all of us to do!”
“Oh, my! The kids are coming back at 1:00. Let’s get back to the bench! Our fun is now done..”
“Oh, kids, we missed you and your family quite a bit.”

“But the stuffed animal sleepover sure was a hit.”
“Thank you to the Upper Allen Woman’s Club GFWC for sponsoring this event at the Joseph T. Simpson Public Library!”
“…and we all thank each of you for letting us come. Can we go home now? We missed everyone!”
